WILLIAMS DEFEATS MIDDLEBURY 9-8

Infield Errors Loses Last Week's Game Played at Williams.

Middlebury suffered another defeat Saturday last the hands of at Williams College, the score being 9-8. Middlebury out-batted Williams and should have had the game, but errors in the infield proved costly. Williams started her score in the first inning. Staller walked to first, Toolan hit safely advancing Staller and Clark filled the bases by reaching first on an error at pitch. Swain of Williams then lined a long fly to center, the ball passing just out of Bartlett's reach, the hit scoring all four players. Williams scored again in the third and seventh.

Middlebury scored the first run in the second inning, Haskins getting a single, advancing on an error at first, stealing third and scoring on Bartlett's hit. With the exception of Bresnahan's run in the sixth Middlebury got the rest of her scores in the eighth and ninth innings when she "came back" with a wallop that nearly finished Williams. In the eighth Bresnahan got a single, Dewhirst went down on a fly to right field, Lamere got a hit advancing Bresnahan, Haskins landed on the ball for a triple scoring Bresnahan and Lamere, Crippen's hit bringing in Haskins. In the ninth Mott, batting for Jones, hit a hard one to pitcher who threw wildly to first, Mott getting to the bag first. Loder walked, Bresnahan got a double scoring Mott and Loder, while Tommy scored on the next play.

Both MacLaughlin and Crippen pitched nice games for Middlebury as did Young for Williams. Features of the game were the home run of Swain, and two double plays; Toolan to Parsons to Brunsbaugh in the third inning, and Parsons to Brunsbaugh in the fourth.

SPECIAL SUMMER SCHOOL COURSE

Lectures on "Roman Architecture" to Be Given.

Attention is called to the fact that the course listed as "Roman Architecture and its Influence", recommended to teachers of Latin, is also intended to meet the need of others who may desire a general outline in architectural data and building forms from the days of the Greeks to the present time. The student in Latin, after the first two weeks in review of Roman types, will recognize the touch of the Imperium upon all of the succeeding Schools from Vitruvius down to our latest modern construction; the one interested in history will see in the varying architectural styles the expression of the political, social, and religious changes in the national life; the student in general art will note the blending of one set of building forms into another and the continuous rise and fall of certain fashions in forms of wood, stone, and metal, as various aesthetic or structural thoughts worked themselves out in the minds of the artists and builders.

The illustration will be by means of the reflectoscope and stereopticon. The examples here suggested for each day are types only and are not intended to be full or comprehensive lists, and, while the illustrations given in the lectures will largely follow these types, they will not always be confined to them.

June 30.—The influence of geography, geology, climate, religion, and social and political conditions upon architecture; primitive types; definitions; architectural Styles; the trabeated architecture of Egypt and Greece.

July 1.—The inheritance of Rome from other civilizations; development of a national type in material, plan, arch, capital, and column; Rome's mission in architecture to the world of its times and to the later centuries.

July 2.—The location of an ancient city; hill top and valley sites; the Hills; Arx; the Tiber valley; building material at Rome; imported material; general condition of the ruins of the city at the present time; methods of identification and reconstruction.

July 5.—Various temple types; Vespasian, Saturn, Div. Caesar, Faustina, Concord, Castor, Fortuna, Venus and Rome; types at Pompeii, Ostia, Baalbek, Palmyra, and Tebessa; Temple of Diana and Maison Carree at Nimes; Jupiter Olympus at Athens.

July 6.—Temple types (continued); the Pantheon; temple of Vesta at Rome; at Tivoli; Mater Matuta; Romulus.

July 7.—Fora; their influence upon the architecture of the city; plans, circuits of the Forum Romanum and of the Imperial Fora; the fora of the colonial cities.

July 8.—Curia; Basilicae; Julia, Aemilia, Ulpia, Constantiniana; at Pompeii, at Treves; Regia.

FACULTY CHANGES TO BE MADE

Additions and Changes in the Faculty Announced.

Several changes and additions in the faculty of Middlebury College will go into effect at the beginning of the next academic year, beside those which have already been announced.

The rapid growth of the Department of Pedagogy since its establishment by the State in 1908 has necessitated the appointment of another instructor, the third in this department. Prof. Frank E. Howard of Nebraska Wesleyan University has been appointed to this place, with the rank of Assistant Professor. Dr. Howard is a graduate in Pedagogy of the Michigan State Normal College, and received the degrees of A. M. and Ph. D. from Clark University. He has had several years experience as principal and superintendent of public schools, and for the past two years has been Professor of Education at Nebraska Wesleyan. Prof. Howard was an instructor in the Middlebury College summer session of 1913.

Mr. George H. Cresse has resigned his position as Assistant Professor of Mathematics after four years of service. His place will be taken by Mr. Luther I. Bonney. Mr. Bonney is a graduate of Bates College in the class of 1906, and since that time has been teaching in Dean Academy, Franklin, Mass.

The vacancy in the Home Economics department caused by the resignation of Miss Marion Spaulding has been filled by the appointment of Miss Ruth Graham, a graduate of Cornell University in the class of 1913. For the past two years Miss Graham has taught Domestic Science and Art in the Stamford (N. Y.) Seminary.

Fraternity League.

In what may prove to be the decisive game in the fraternity league schedule of this year, Delta Upsilon and Alpha Sigma Phi, the two teams tied for first place in the contest for the Horace Patridge cup met in a fast game Monday at Porter Field. The game was anybody's game until the sixth inning, when the latter team scored a comfortable lead. Brewster and Cole pitched well for the winners, as did Hollister for the opposing team. The score was: Alpha Sigma Phi 7, Delta Upsilon 4.

Elect Officers.

A meeting of the Women's Athletic Association was held June 3. The officers for 1915-16 were elected as follows:

President, Huldah Thomas.
Vice-President, Eva Leland.
Secretary-Treasurer, Orra Henderson.

Helen Sibley and Orra Henderson were chosen as delegates from the association to Silver Bay.

Remember the Commencement dates, June 19 to 23.

Carnegie Fund Lectures.

One of the interesting announcements made in connection with the Seventh Summer Session of Middlebury College is a new course to be given by Dr. Collier, of Brown University, whose lectures in history will be remembered with pleasure by the students of the last Summer Session. Dr. Collier's new course is entitled "International Polity," and consists of a study of various topics connected with war and peace, including the principles governing the relations of nations; nationalism and internationalism; the causes of wars; the economics of war; social and moral effects of war; genesis and development of the modern peace movement; progress toward international arbitration; the outlook for world peace. Such a course forms an admirable supplement to Dr. Collier's course on "The Europe of Today," a portrayal of the genesis and growth of those rivalries, aspirations, and antagonisms which have culminated in the present war. The course in International Polity is made possible by the generous support of the Carnegie Endowment for International Conciliation which takes this method of presenting for the serious study of teachers and thoughtful people the principles and problems underlying the development of policies which will promote world harmony. Such a course should attract the attention of clergymen and many townspeople as well as regular students of the Summer Session. The lectures will be open to the public.

Letter on War--German Situation

Anent the recent address of Frl. Kadelbach at the College, it is well to remember that there is a very different view of the situation held by a large—perhaps the largest—number of the friends of Germany in this country. This view is set forth in the following extract of a letter from Professor Skillings to Mr. Cole, '15:

"There is no question that the Germans are waging war barbarously, and the Lusitania horror is cold-blooded murder. But in these times of ferment we should keep our heads. I mean we who have studied German ideas, literature and life. We should have studied to little purpose if it is not clear to us that there are two Germany's in spite of the fact that Germany is all but a unit for the war. I say 'all but' because a million and a quarter Social-Democrats have already begun to demur; we are bound to hear more of it as time goes on.

"The German people are not barbarous, despite the barbarous acts of official Germany, military and governmental, and the apparent acquiescence of the people in their policies. Heine, the persecuted, had the insight to see that " 'Deutschland hat ewigen Bestand, Es ist ein kerngesundes Land.' "

"The tragedy of the present is the warping of the mentality of a great people by the obsession of militarism. For their stupidity in allowing themselves to be played into the hands of the frightfully culpable military party, the German people must be chastened. After the war is over, this noble people will exact a fearful reckoning of their blind leaders, military and civil.

"In their present frenzy they remind us of Schiller's lines in the 'Lied von der Glocke:

" 'Gefahrlich ist den Leu zu wecken.
Verderblich ist des Tigers Zahn.
Jedoch, der Schrechlichste der Shrecken
Das ist der Mensch in seinem Wahn.' "

"Das treue DeutscheVolk is at present under the spell of a Wahn.

"The remote causes of the war—the bogy of mutual fear and distrust—fostered by decades of secret diplomacy and treaties—make all the European nations culpable. But the logic of events is demonstrating beyond a doubt that the Allies are fighting the cause of human liberty. The menace of Russian imperialism and Hohenzollern autocracy must be annihilated—this is the great object of the war. In my judgment, the time is past when we Americans can remain neutral. We must throw our influence for the Allies.

"Nevertheless, we sympathizers with the real German people, who are not bad, believe me, but obsessed for the time being with a terrible delusion (Wahn), must take care to be discriminating. Now of all others is the time to have the insight and the courage to defend the real German people, to whom we owe so much that is best in our national and spiritual life—even against themselves in their present obsession.

"Have you read Villard's 'Germany Embattled?' It is a discriminating exposition of the two Germany's to which I have referred. I think it one of the most valuable books on the war. Villard was born and educated in Germany, which gives his words all the more weight."

With many good wishes,
Cordially yours,
EVERETT SKILLINGS.

RHODES' SCHOLARSHIPS.

What are the Rhodes Scholarships? Answers to this question obtained from two hundred secondary and college teachers in America proved highly instructive, in many cases most amusing, but withal most saddening, for they displayed a collossal ignorance, not only regarding the necessary examinations to be taken and the qualifications required, but also of the extraordinary opportunities presented to holders of the scholarships. Accordingly, the following article has been presented by the American Club of Oxford University in the hope that a greater interest in these scholarships may be aroused and that more men may be influenced to take the examinations (which are held in October annually by every State of the Union) and to compete for the honor and privilege of representing Vermont at Oxford University.

In 1899 Cecil Rhodes, widely known as the "empire builder" and as the pioneer in the development of British South Africa, bequeathed a legacy of $10,000,000 for the establishment of 171 perpetual scholarships at Oxford University. These are distributed to the various British oversea possessions; including Canada, South Africa, Australia, New Zealand, Tasmania, The Bermudas, Jamaica; to the United States of America, two being allotted to each State, and fifteen to Germany. The scholarships are tenable for three years, and are of a value of £300 ($1500) annually, a sum sufficient to meet the ordinary expenses of a college student at Oxford, including tuition, books, living expenses, clothes, and the expenses of considerable, but not extensive, vacation traveling.

In the United States candidates to be eligible must be between the ages of 19 and 25, unmarried, and must have completed their second year in college. To qualify for the appointment the candidate must pass the Oxford entrance examination. This examination is not competitive, merely qualifying, being also quite elementary and not at all difficult. It includes arithmetic, the elements either of algebra or of geometry (the candidate may take his choice), Latin grammar, translation from English into Latin prose, translation from Latin into English, Greek grammar, and translation from Greek into English. In view, however, of the probability that some desirable candidates, while unwilling to prepare the required Greek on the mere chance of securing the scholarship, would willingly do so when once the scholarship had been definitely awarded to them, the Rhodes Trustees have decided that any candidate who has passed the examination in Latin and mathematics should be eligible for election to a scholarship, the examination in Greek to be taken later upon his arrival at Oxford. Experience shows that enough knowledge of Greek to pass the examination can be absorbed in the interval between receiving the appointment and coming into residence at Oxford.

Having passed the qualifying examination the candidates present themselves before the Committee of Selection of their State, which makes the appointment on the basis of a man's previous scholarship record, his character, his qualties of leadership as indicated by previous activities, and his fondness for and skill in outside sports. Mr. Rhodes' ideal was neither the "dig" nor the "sport," but the all-round man.

As regards the course of study to which a successful candidate may look forward, the feeling seems to be prevalent that Oxford is a university devoted solely to the classics, and that in most cases the scholarships cannot be used to advantage in the light of one's future career. Nothing could be more erroneous. Oxford offers splendid advantages for the study not only of the classics, but of mathematics, of history and economics, of modern as well as classical literature of philosophy, of anthropology, of law, of theology, of the natural sciences, including physics, chemistry, physiology, botany and forestry, and degrees are also granted in medicine, surgery and music,—the work in many cases being given under the best minds of the British Empire. The opportunity of studying under some of the continental professors is also afforded and taken advantage of during the long summer vacation of four months.

In addition, one may mention the attractions of the social and athletic activities of Oxford life, There are twenty-two separate colleges, ranging in size from 50 men to 350 men, each college bearing in broad terms the same relation to the university as the States of the Union bear to the federal government, and each undergraduate is a member of the university by virtue of his membership in a college. Each college has its own athletic grounds, and engages in various athletic activities, including Rugby and soccer football,

FACULTY WORST SENIORS, 13-9.

The faculty took its next to the last whack at the Senior class yesterday at Porter Athletic Field when members of that distinguished body demonstrated—to their own satisfaction at least—how to play baseball in a truly logical, mathematical, historical, biological and otherwise scholarly manner.

Umpire "Joe" Peck started the game by fearlessly announcing the line-up in terms usually used only behind locked doors, and owing to his temporary authority was allowed to go unharmed.

Quite inconsistent with other events in the contest, the game started with the first inning coming first. "Prexie," garbed in a suit (?) a cross between a golfer's uniform and a motorcyclist's outfit, was first at bat. Although his batting average so far this season has been well over a thousand, he failed to reach first in the alotted time of four-and-a-half minutes, and so was officially declared out by the aforesaid "Ump."

The next moment, however, "Tute" brought the grandstand to its feet by beating out three strikes for two bases. "Cunny" went out at first on a clever sacrifice, allowing "Tute" to come home, denting the rubber for the first run. Shortly after, while "Tute" was rubbing the denter, Sim disgracefully struck out. McCullough, the first Senior at bat, went down at first, while Shea and Larry Gardner fell victims to the hypnotic Ingersoll wind-up of "Mac" McFarland.

By the end of the fifth the Seniors had scored a lead of f ve runs, but the sixth proved itself to be the "lucky seventh" to those contrary-minded faculty men. "Cunny" started the merry-go-round by knocking a nice home run to left field off Day, who had replaced Gardner. Sim got a single and stole second. "Mac," (under whom Pitcher Day is taking several courses) was allowed to reach first without undue effort; "Robby," responding to the applause of the co-eds, came across with a pretty single, scoring Sim. "Billy" Burrage was allowed to run toward first for the benefit of the photographers along first base line, but was disgracefully put out when first base was almost in sight. "Dutchy" Viles landed a pretty home run to left field, on which he made three bases, scoring "Mac" and "Robby." Swett and "Prexie" crossed the Bridge of Sighs together, but not before "Dutchy" had scored.

"Porky" Sterns, coming to bat for the Seniors, hit the ball to centre field, where "Prex," after turning several somersaults, handsprings and drawing plans for a new forestry building which he is thinking of having bequeathed to the college, decided to return the ball, but was too late to catch "Porky." Whitney fanned, and Ratti, after hitting, was declared out at third by "Ump." Peck and the right field bleachers. Cliff Day and Ki Kron hit safely and scored, while McCullough went down at first, "Mac" to "Cunny."

In the seventh, "Tute," "Sim," "Mac," "Robby," Swett and "Prexie" all scored, the last named getting a clean hit through short, carrying him safely to first, and stealing second in truly professional style.

At this point in the game it was found that Prof. Swett had disappeared, so after making sure that the gate re-

COLLEGE NOTES.

Miss Helen Bosworth and Miss Christine Webster spent the week-end at Bristol.

Miss Helen Harlow of Montpelier has been the guest of Miss Genevra Harlow for sevaral days.

Miss Margery Lee spent the week-end at her home in Vergennes.

Miss Helen Foss has accepted a position to teach in Canajoharie, N. Y., for the ensuing year.

Miss Doris Kendall attended the commencement exercises at Colby Academy.

The Pi Beta Phi fraternity is planning a house party for the week after Commencement and the following girls are expected back: Florence Aseltine, Charlotte Jenne, Ellen Bailey, Isabel Esten, Helen Harriman, Anne Perkins, Eleanor Hatch and Elizabeth Chalmers.

Women's Basket Ball.

The last scheduled game of the series was played by the Juniors and Sophomores Wednssday, May 26. The Juniors won, 10 to 2. As the championship was questioned the tie between the Juniors and Freshmen was played off Friday evening. The resulting score, 7 to 6 in favor of the Freshmen was contested by the Juniors who claimed one basket which was not allowed. Later referee Kron said that he was uncertain whether or not it was a fair basket.

As there will be no opportunity for another game to settle the question, the championship for the year cannot be claimed by any class.

Meeker-Cady.

A pretty home wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Cady in the east part of Middlebury Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock when their youngest daughter, Eunice Cady, was united in marriage to Royal Meeker of Pittsfield, Mass. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. D. H. Corkran, pastor of the Methodist church of Middlebury assisted by the Rev. Martin E. Cady of Riverside, Ill., an uncle of the bride. The bride wore a gown of white crepe de chine and carried a shower boquet of white roses. The house was trimmed with mountain pinks, running pine, house plants and ferns. Only members of the immediate family were present and members of the Sigma Kappa sorority of the college of which Miss Cady is a member. After a short wedding trip they will make their home in Pittsfield.

Silver Bay Athletics.

Silver Bay is the only place where Middlebury girls have a chance to measure with other colleges in athletics. Last year in tennis we at least showed Holyoke and Wellesley that we were there. Middlebury was obliged to join with Wheaton in basket ball but this year we have to stand alone, as a complete team, including at least three of our local stars, is being sent. We must more than hold our own in both sports and show them that we live up to our song—

"You cannot see in gay Wellesley
The girl that will outbid
The athletic lass
Of any class
In dear old Midd."

FACULTY WORST SENIORS, 13-9.

ceipts were intact, a change was made in the faculty line-up, Viles replacing MacFarland at pitch and Lyford taking third.

"Mickey" Shea hit safely, stole second, but was caught out at third. Cole hit, stole second, took third on "Mugger's" hit, and scored. "Mugger" reached third, but at this point an unfortunate accident occurred. In attempting to catch Sistare off third Sim threw to Lyford, who caught the ball partly on the hand and partly on the head, but mostly on the latter, and the game was called. (Sistare was safe).

The feature of the game was the umpiring of "Ump." Peck.

A BIRD'S-EYE VIEW OF THE CAMPUS AND BUILDINGS

The College is now prepared to furnish to alumni and students a beautiful photogravure of the campus and buildings, from a drawing by Mr. J. M. Meeker. The size is 10x20 1-2. The paper is Dutch hand-made plate, of weight sufficient to be framed unmounted. All of the newer buildings of the college are shown, including the Mead Memorial Chapel. The picture is pronounced equal to any college bird's-eye view in impressiveness and beauty.

It is suggested that alumni may not only desire copies for themselves, but also for presentation to some high school.

ALBANY LAW SCHOOL

The course of study leading to the degree of L. L. B. extends over a period of three years. Students who have pursued one or two years in a law office may enter the second year class as a candidate for a diploma but not a degree.

The high standard of the school and the facilities which the city affords with its legislature, libraries and courts, offer unequalled opportunity for a thorough and practical training.

RHODES' SCHOLARSHIPS.

hockey, cricket, tennis and rowing.

And then there is the alluring prospect, open to every Rhodes Scholar, of travel and contact with the peoples of all Europe. His allowance is limited, but in company with some genial friend he travels cheaply and sees more than the much noted American tourist. When the great war broke, Rhodes Scholars found themselves marooned in Italy, in France, in Switzerland, in Germany, in Russia, and marvelous are some of the tales they tell. The desire to be of service in these troublous times has also carried many to Belgium, some to France, and one even to Servia, in the work of relief.

It is hoped that the young men of our high schools, colleges and universities will realize that the Rhodes Scholarship is a goal worth striving for, and that more will put forth the effort required to gain it.
